LIST OF PUBLICATIONS (IN REVERSE CHRONOLOGICAL ORDER)

Books

1. An introduction to Metaphysics: Contemporary Debates and Their Historical Background, co-authored with Erasmus Mayr, OUP, forthcoming in early 2019.
2. Metafisica. Una Breve Introduzione, co-authored with Erasmus Mayr, Carocci Editore, July 2017, pp. i + 148. (This is a shorter version of 1. above)
3. Everything in Everything. Anaxagoras's Metaphysics, OUP, March 2017, pp. xi + 224.

"Marmodoro displays deep understanding of the secondary literature and she offers reasoned, even-handed, and efficient objections to competing interpretations. Through her investigation, Marmodoro invites the reader to take a fresh look: to reexamine and revalue Anaxagoras' physical theory. The volume is a must read for specialists, a should read for students, and a deeply profitable read for anyone who is keen to learn about imaginative, creative, and complex approaches to ontology and cosmology." John Sisko – Bryn Mawr Classical Review.

"Any attempt to provide a coherent account of Anaxagoras's physical theory consistent with the extant evidence is perhaps bound to encounter difficulties, since the theory itself was in all probability less than fully coherent. Although Marmodoro's account has its difficulties, the refreshing originality of its conception and its vision of Anaxagoras through the lens of contemporary metaphysical concerns should inspire philosophers who have only a vague idea of Anaxagoras's achievement to take up the texts for themselves. Her arguments and readings should also inspire those who are well versed in this evidence to see it in new ways. Anyone tempted to think there is little philosophy among the Presocratics will find in Marmodoro's monograph a provocative case to the contrary." John Palmer – Notre Dame Philosophical Review.

Another review has appeared in Philosophy in Review.

4. Aristotle on Perceiving Objects, OUP, June 2014, pp. ix + 304.

"Her book is written with unusual verve and formidable ambition. It sets out to solve the most difficult problems in Aristotle's theory of perception, and it promises to do so in the best philosophical spirit, namely by cutting reality 'at its joints' at the most fundamental level, which, according to Marmodoro, is the level of the metaphysics of powers. Accordingly, her argument starts with a metaphysical discussion of Aristotle's conception of powers, causation, and change, and then applies the results to his theory of human perception. The outcome is a highly innovative, at times almost dazzling array of fresh, often controversial, and unfailingly thought-provoking, discussions of a whole plethora of issues in Aristotle's metaphysics and theory of perception." – Klaus Corcilius, Oxford Studies in Ancient Philosophy.

Other reviews of the book have appeared in: The Times Literary Supplement; the Notre Dame Philosophical Reviews, the Australasian Journal of Philosophy, the Journal of the History of Philosophy, the Bryn Mawr Classical Review; Metascience, Philosophy in Review; Ancient Philosophy.

Edited books

1. Exploring Gregory of Nyssa: philosophical, theological and historical studies, OUP, forthcoming in October 2018 (co-edited with Neil McLynn)
2. A History of Mind and Body in Late Antiquity, CUP, July 2018 (co-edited with Sophie Cartwright)
3. Divine Powers in Late Antiquity, OUP, February 2017, pp. xi + 304 (co-edited with Eirini Viltanioti)

"I highly recommend this foundational book to anyone concerned with the issues discussed herein, and all such readers can benefit from its persuasive analyses and full insight." – Daniel Lemeni, in Reading Religion, American Academy of Religion. Other reviews of the book has appeared in the Bryn Mawr Classical Review and the Journal of Ancient Christianity.

4. The Metaphysics of Relations, OUP, January 2016, pp. xi + 304 (co-edited with David Yates)

"This volume of thirteen commissioned chapters and an introduction provides state of the art contributions to both the philosophical discussion of relation and our understanding of the history of this discussion. It is a model of how historical scholarship and contemporary philosophy can complement each other." – Phil Corkum, Notre Dame Philosophical Reviews. Other reviews of the book have appeared in: the Australasian Journal of Philosophy, Disputatio, Philosophy, The Philosophical Quarterly.

5. Causation and Creation in Late Antiquity, CUP, February 2015, pp. xi + 312 (co-edited with Brian Prince; paperback edition 2018; reviewed in the Bryn Mawr Classical Review)
6. The Author's Voice in Classical and Late Antiquity, OUP, October 2013, pp. xiii + 448 (co-edited with Jonathan Hill; reviewed in the Bryn Mawr Classical Review)
7. The Metaphysics of the Incarnation, OUP, January 2011, pp. xix + 262 (co-edited with Jonathan Hill, several reviews in press)
8. The Metaphysics of Powers: Their Grounding and Their Manifestations, Routledge, April 2010, pp. vii + 204 (paperback edition 2013; reviewed in the Notre Dame Philosophical Review; recommended in the Oxford Bibliographies entry on dispositions)

"Marmodoro's volume represents a refreshing turn in the literature on dispositions [...] the impression that emerges from the book as a whole is one of a maturing movement in metaphysics, well past its reactionary, manifesto-penning stage and into a period of rapid, self-critical development. Anyone with an interest in the prospects for a disposition-based ontology should read it" – Troy Cross, Notre Dame Philosophical Reviews
