

One-Many Relations in Chinese Philosophy

Online-Workshop

Zoom ID: 982 3676 8637

Passcode: 526715

Time: Nov 6, 2021 19:00 (GMT+8)

In the worldview of different traditions, we usually find paradoxical articulations of one-many relations, such as "one is many", "all in each", "trinity", "unity of heaven and the human", and so on. What are the different strategies employed by different thinkers, especially those from the Chinese philosophical traditions, to account for the diversification of one or the unification of many? What would be the foundation for contemplating one-many relations? This workshop aims to investigate these questions with a view to intercultural examination and dialogue, focusing particularly on Chinese philosophy.

Speakers:

Cantor, Lea (University of Oxford)

Chew, Sihao (University of Oxford)

He, Fan (Sichuan University)

Kwok, Sai Hang (Hong Kong University of Science and Technology)

Koo, Hao Wei (Nanyang Technological University)

Liang, Yuhan (University of Connecticut)

Tan, Christine (Yale-NUS College)